"WELCOME BELLS"
Speech welcoming guests
By Joyce Lamoreux

Sisters and Brothers:

The welcome bells are ringing tonight! They are playing loud and clear the message we extend to our guest (guests) who has (have) come to share this special evening with us.

Singing bells have been used for centuries to note all the important events of life - indeed adding importance to some happenings of life just by their very sound.

We are delighted to ring the bells tonight to mark the visit of our guests and to bid them welcome in our midst. Friends, we are greatly honored by your presence and count it a privilege to greet you within the circle of our _____ Chapter family. We ring the bells tonight to tell the world of our joy in having you here.
