MATRON:

It seems to me that the Past Matrons and Patrons of our Chapter are very much like the graduates of a school and, since you are all here tonight, we will have a homecoming celebration. No homecoming is complete without a band so the band will please assemble.

(The band is made up of such things as a dishpan and spoon, a washboard and thimble, two lids, two water glasses on a table. These are played by hitting back and forth between them with a fork; combs covered with tissue paper, through which the person hums the melody; a piano. Band must practice beforehand and there must be a leader to direct. Pieces such as "The Old Gray Mare", and "Put on Your Old Gray Bonnet," etc. may be played.)

(Chairs are placed across the West while band assembles and tunes us.)

MATRON:

No homecoming is complete without a parade and tonight the Alumni will be in the parade. The Alumni of ______ Chapter will please stand and follow the Conductress, carrying their school colors (her staff). Strike up the band!

(Conductress picks up all honored guests on both sides of the room, leads them around the room and in front of the chairs which have been placed in the West.)

MATRON:

You may be seated. (Band gives a loud chord.)

(If there are Matrons and Patrons who held that office more than one year, the Matron might name them and say that the records show that those people had been detained in the senior class 2 years, or 3 years, or whatever it may be.)

MATRON:

Since you are all graduates of this Chapter, you should be well informed about the offices, so we have prepared a musical quiz to see how smart you are. The Organist will play a piece of music and you will write down the office you think it represents. For example, if Adah's star color were gray and not blue, the Organist might play "The Old Gray Mare." You would write down "Adah." The Marshal will pass out pads and pencils.

Here is the quiz:
