Preparation:
All officers are in their stations. The Conductress and Associate Conductress have small flash lights; the secretary has two memorandum books and the treasurer, two pretty pebbles. These are all wrapped as gifts and may be as inexpensive or as elaborate as the Chapter wishes.

Characters:
Worthy Matron, Worthy Patron, Conductress, Associate Conductress, Secretary Treasurer, Five Star Points and singers.

Lights are lowered as for initiation.
The following song is sung as a solo or duet. Tune—"Just A Song at Twilight" may be found in any book of old songs.

\[
\begin{align*}
&\text{Just a song to } \text{(Associate Matron’s name)} \\
&\text{While the lights are low;} \\
&\text{And a song to } \text{(Associate Patron’s name)} \\
&\text{For we love them so.} \\
\text{In their Western stations} \\
\text{They have served us well;} \\
\text{They deserve much honor} \\
\text{More than tongue can tell.} \\
\text{Yes, more than tongue can tell.} \\
\end{align*}
\]

At the close of the song the lights are brightened.
The Worthy Matron speaks:
We are happy to honor our Associate Matron and Patron tonight. Sister Marshall and Sister Conductress, will you escort them to the East?

They are presented by the Worthy Matron and Worthy Patron, who will each give a few words of tribute to them for the good they have done in the past. They are then seated in the East.

Music—a chord is played as a signal for the Star Points to rise.
The Worthy Matron speaks:
My sisters, have you words from the Star Rays which may help our sister and brother on their Eastern Star journey?

As each point responds she turns on her station lamp.

Adah:
My sister and brother, this blue light of fidelity will lead you on the paths of duty and right, if you but keep your eyes upon it as you journey along to the East.

Ruth:
The yellow ray will be your guide in the lowly and unselfish services you perform and will lead you that place of joy which all experience who know that they have been faithful to their trusts.

Esther:
The white light will show you how joy, purity and happiness may be found in the sacrifice of personal gain, that others may be benefitted. If you will but keep your eyes on this clear ray you will find untold happiness as you journey along.

Eloah:
The green ray will lead you to a beautiful understanding of a trustful faith in God and hope of everlasting life. Never leave the rays of this beautiful light, for it is ever a perfect guide.

Eleaza:
My sister and brother, if you will but follow this red ray of love, peace will be yours. It will bring you courage to face difficulties and give you grace to meet unforeseen obstacles. Love overcometh all for love is the greatest thing in the world.

Worthy Patron: And so on one path all these rays may be seen—the path that is always lighted by the rays of His Star in the East.
Honoring Associate Matron and Patron.

Music—"Follow the Gleam", one verse. This may be found in almost any hymnal.

A chord seats the Star Points and at the same time raises the Conductress, Associate Conductress, Secretary and Treasurer. The Conductress and Associate Conductress march East, pick up the other two officers and then march West. The four sisters meet in a line back of Esther's chair.

The Conductress speaks:

Worthy Matron, we have heard the words of our sisters as they so beautifully pointed out the paths to travel on the Eastern Star journey. We bring material gifts to our distinguished guests, to take with them on their journey and we desire permission to approach the East.

Worthy Matron speaks:

My sisters you may approach the East.

The sisters go East, two on each side of the Chapter room.

Associate Conductress speaks to Associate Matron.

Sister (name) I bring you this little light
In case you may be in the dark,
About some things along the way,
And so should miss your mark.

Associate Conductress to Associate Patron:

Brother (name) I also bring to you a light
To sort of brighten things a bit
It may be tough when all next year
You'll be compelled in the East to sit.

Secretary to both officers:

I bring you both a little book,
In which to write the dates to keep
So when you should be out to dine
You'll find you have not time to sleep.

Treasurer to both officers

I bring you each a writing tool
With which to keep your check book straight,
So you'll not find you've spent too much
When it is far too late.

The four sisters return to their stations.

Lights are again lowered

The same verse as was sung in the opening of the ceremony is now repeated as the Conductress and Marshall escort the guests to their places in the West.
