WORTHY MATRON:

Sisters it is your duty to explain the meaning of your color, and to deliver your message in an impressive manner and with dignity. You have been given this duty, because you were considered fitted for the work. Your explanation will long remain in the mind and heart of your listener. If you give careful thought to the message you explain, you will be able to impress upon the heart of a seeker after light, the real meaning of your color and symbolic word.

MARSHALL: (Stands at Adah's Station with ribbons and booklets)

Sister Adah, your color is blue. Your word is Fidelity. Your explanation of your lecture is a sacred trust. The blue dome of Heaven which spans above us, glows with the light of the beautiful Star, because of one who was faithful unto the last. One whose fidelity is her mission never faltered. One who died to keep a vow. (In this booklet, the story of Adah is revealed. This year, you as Adah will assist all Youth Organizations, in addition to Rainbow Girls, and Demolay Boys. This is a project of the Most Worthy Grand Matron, during her Premiership. Marshall gives Adah ribbon and booklet) Adah moves toward Esther's chair and Ruth moves up to Adah's Station. The Marshall remains in same position as she delivers her message to each Star Point.

MARSHALL: Sister Ruth your color is yellow. Your word is Constancy. You must explain the meaning of your color and word, so that the one receiving the message will desire to be constant and in all good things. Ever remember that in the lowly walks of life, as well as in the courts of kings, Constancy is a virtue that all recognize and honor. (Star Points continue to move up one station at a time.)

MARSHALL: The life of Ruth you will find in this book. This year you as Ruth will encourage giving aid, and making visits to the elderly and shut-ins, and those ill at home or in hospitals with special recognition to those who care--by the presentation of a "Carrie" badge, and the promotion of the Proficiency Test, with a presentation of a certificate of merit to those passing the test.

MARSHALL: Queen Esther, your name has gone down in history, as one who offered her life to save her people. Your color is white. Your word is Purity. The pure white light of unselfish service is your message. (This book will reveal the story of Esther as Queen. Your project for the year is ESTARL, which gives aid to those desiring training for Religious Leadership.

MARSHALL: Sister Martha, your color is green. Your word is Immortality. As the green of the spring gives evidence of another growing season, so the promise of Immortality gives hope for growth beyond the grave. Man becomes immortal in his seeking after and finding God. This is your message.

(In this book you will find the story of Martha. Your project for the year is the Ella Maude Lander Brady Cancer Research and Education Project, a General Grand Chapter Project. In memory of the late Sister Jean Fair, Grand Chaplain at the time of her death in 1972, we encourage greater support of this project.

MARSHALL: Sister Electa, your color is red. Your word is Fervency. Zeal for the right, and a fervent desire to live rightly, is the message you have to give. The hungry human heart is eager to accept the message of love and devotion.

(The life story of Electa you will find in this book. Your special project for the year will be our own Eastern Star Home, and the Overlook Shelter at the Peace Garden.

WORTHY MATRON: Truly, the pathway of life has colors rare.
MARSHALL delivers each lecture at ADAH's Station, also hands each a ribbon of her color, and her little book. After the Marshall has spoken to ADAH, she passes back of the Algar, making a "V" march, and marches to ELECTA's Station. As she goes to Electa's Station Ruth comes to ADAH's Station, Esther to Ruth, Martha to Esther, and Electa to Martha. At the close of the rotation, Electa will be in position to go to her own station. Each Star Point occupies the five stations, and make a "V" back of the Altar from Adah to Electa. This will make a pretty transfer if all move in unison and each continues to stand during each lecture at Adah's STATION.

An Assistant Marshall may stand west of the Altar and hand each point her color.
